POULTRY

Supply is readily available on all parts of the bird as we move into Thanksgiving week. Some parts could start to tighten as we move through the holidays due to plant closures.

SEAFOOD

Tis the season to celebrate with seafood! As holiday gatherings, catering events, and festive parties fill the calendar, now is the perfect time to feature crowd-pleasing favorites like cooked shrimp, King Crab, Snow Crab, Dungeness Crab, Stone Crab, scallops and premium smoked salmon. Make seafood the centerpiece of every holiday spread and give your customers something worth celebrating!

BEEF

The choice cutout once again moved lower last week and is now the lowest its been since early January. Chuck, rounds and striploins are the cuts putting the most pressure on the cutout value..

PORK

Softer demand, surplus supply, & less export due to healthier foreign hog health have left pork markets across all cutouts outside of ribs fairly soft. Markets are expected to rebound marginally going into December; many believe pork has hit the floor and, overall, cutouts will not go lower.

GRAINS & OILS

The week started off lower, but rebounded as the week progressed for soybean oil. The trading ranges have moved lower and the market's volatility is tighter.

DAIRY

The weekly butter market average price for this week is $1.311 per lb. up $0.0230 per lb. from the prior week.

BELL PEPPERS

East - Supplies are tight, quality is fair to good, demand strong, and the market is higher on all peppers; green, red and yellow. West - Market remains steady on Greens, but extremely short and high priced on all colored peppers

RUSSET POTATOES

40-70 ct remain in lighter supply and high demand. Pricing remains steady. All growers are reporting lighter yields which vary across the state. Sizing is smaller. Quality remains good. Washington market is steady.

ONIONS

The market has declined this week on reds and yellows. Quality remains good from both areas. Over all volume is lighter this year from Idaho and steady from Washington.

GRAPES

Market is higher as supplies are starting to fall off on green and red. Heavy rain in Peru have increased concern on quality and supply for next month.

TOMATOES

Florida harvest continues to be light due to rain showers. We will see gradual improvement in supply over the next few weeks along with improved quality. Mexico supplies remain light as they continue to recover from previous weather. Markets remain elevated.

STRAWBERRIES

California growers are recovering from another rain last weekend with a big storm on the way that is hitting the entire state. This will be another major setback. Mexico is picking up and Florida is starting but is will not be enough. Florida is also going to see multiple days of rain.

MUSHROOMS

Supplies remain tight industry wide and demand very strong due to the holiday pull. We are not foreseeing shortages at this time.
