

A GUIDE TO QUICK Family-Style Meals

In times of anxiety, people often turn to familiar food to reassure themselves and their families.

Comfort foods are called that for a reason; they let diners relax and eat something they know they'll enjoy without having to make many decisions. Since cities started COVID-19 quarantine procedures, sales of comfort food items have seen a drastic increase with noodles, sandwiches and classic hot dishes leading the way.

But what's in the dish matters less than the memories associated with it, studies have shown. This means the ideal comfort foods are going to vary for different people based on location and ethnicity. Spending some time upgrading popular local comfort foods on your menu and making sure they stand out as winners will set you apart.

Spring is a time when everyone wants to break out the grill and throw big BBQ parties. Unfortunately, this is not a feasible choice for many Americans right now. Instead many will turn to BBQ takeout. Your flavors will remind your customers of that block party they are missing. Make sure your ingredients are up to the task. Butcher's Block provides everything from easy, ready-to-use smoked pulled pork to tender briskets ready for the grill.

Quarantine can be boring, why not add a little spice? Hispanic flavors can be fused with nontraditional dishes or enhanced into an authentic south of the border meal. Either way getting started is easy with Casa Solana. Benefit from plentiful options for chefs across the culinary landscape to add popular Mexican-inspired flavor profiles to your customers' favorite dishes or fully prepared entrées to their menus. From classic staples like cheese sauces, spices, and salsas to ready-to-cook options like burritos, tacos, and pre-cooked proteins, Casa Solana is committed to bringing the Mexican-inspired flavors to your menu.
